Control Systems

Put simply, control systems 'integrate' all of your equipment onto one simple unit that will combine the operation of all aspects of your AV system and other technology in the room.

Control AV, blinds, climate & more in the simplest way possible

Our experience in audio visual design and installation also extends to implementing the right control system to consolidate your equipment into one control unit. This means that rather than having four or five remote controls sitting on a boardroom table or class room, we can program all of your equipment into one control unit. Get the most sophisticated AV control solutions.

AV System Design and Project Management

Efficient & effective project management is our promise to you. We keep detailed and complete documentation of the model and type of equipment used and detailed wiring schematics of your AV project so that we can reference what was done if support and servicing is required at a later date.

The more complex systems are assembled in our premises to ensure that the system we have designed works and meets your objectives before it is installed on site. That is why our systems operate reliably, are easy and intuitive to operate and offer flexibility in function.
